

I contend that the enforcement of decency standards is critical. Many young and teen aged children are alone and left unsupervised for hours each day. Because of their youth they are not fully capable of making informed decisions and they are highly susceptible to the influence of the things that they hear and see so they should be shielded from explicit language and nudity. The lowering of decency standards will have an adverse affect on them and ultimately on our society.

If decency standards are changed they should be changed to include cable and satellite broadcasts during the daytime hours.
